

Samara Weaver Artist Statement

I have always been fascinated with materiality, my artistic practice is rooted in experimentation and play with various materials. I enjoy learning about and experimenting with new materials. I use materials to explore texture, color, and perspective. I combine large numbers of smaller often simple elements into multi-faceted compositions. These elements gain complexity and shape space with their combination. My work often invites touch and asks the observer to explore it with multiple senses. I immerse myself in the mediums I work with, exploring their different properties, effects, and methods of working with each material.
